

RRTO Innovation Outreach: Connecting the DoD to Innovative, Emerging Non-Traditional Companies

The Rapid Reaction Technology Offices is looking for DoD organizations who would like to bring in innovative technologies and would benefit from assistance reaching out to the start-up ecosystem and other non-traditional companies.

The RRTO helps identify and expose emerging commercial technologies to DOD organizations that can help solve their technical challenges. Through collaboration with Government, commercial technologies can be identified that directly respond to the needs of the organization, thereby reducing acquisition time, cost, and risk. These are companies that often would not be seen by the government. RRTO and MITRE work together to assist with developing needs, identifying relevant companies, and arranging Solutions Meetings where these companies can brief the government audience on their potential solution. There is no cost to the government for this as RRTO offers this process as a service to other DOD organizations.

If there is interest in discussion about the Innovation Outreach process please contact Daniel Weiss (dweiss@mitre.org) who can set up a teleconference with the RRTO team.
